The repeal of the act prohibiting the use of screens &c., seems to have been run use of screens &c., seems to have been run through the legislature very quietly after the manner of the Congressional Act demonetizing silver. Few people "within the bawl of a mule." Act demonetizing silver. Few people knew any thing about it at the time, and very few know any thing about it yet. The present law requires a written notice prohibiting the sale of liquor to certain parties, to be in writing, and to be served upon the saloon keeper or his representative personally, instead of by publication Great Famines.

From the Cincinnati Times.

The India famine, whose terrible proportions increase rather than diminish with further news, is all the more shocking in its features because in such startl ing contrast with what we are pleased to call the progress of civilization. In the middle ages, when international relations were very chilly, and individual States much more isolated than now, when steam transit was yet undiscovered and inter-State commerce in its child-hood, it was perhaps natural, and at least inevitable, that famines should occur. La cal scarcity, and failures in crops, occur ring, there was no inflow, as now, of the surplus food of other countries, seeking a market, and the afflicted com-munity had to bear up as best it might. The humane mind recoils, shuddering, from the mere mention of the most notable of these great famines in history. The seven years famine of Egypt, taught us in our Sunday schools, is supposed to have occurred about 1708 B. C. n B. C. 436 a famine occurred at Rome In B. C. 439 a lamine occurred at Rome of such horrible propertions that thousands of people, in despair and hunger, threw themselves into the Tiber. In 272 A. D. Britain suffered from a famine which drove the hardy inhabitants to chewing the bark of trees for the sustenance of life. In England, in the year 310, a famine occurred in which 40,000 people are said to have perished. In the Italian famine of 470, parents, according to Dufreson, turned cannibals, and ate their own children. In 1016 Europe was sillied by one of the most awful famines on record, so widespread that there was indeed no one left to borrow from. The estimates of those who died from stravation and want are almost passing belief. In 1193 a famine fell upon England which bred a pestilential fever lasting three years, and again in 1315 the scarcity of food was so great there that the people were driven to the eating of rats and other vermin. In 1433 the French peasants were driven to the eating of rats and other vermin. In 1433 the French peasants were driven to the eating of rats and other vermin. In 1435 the recommendation of seam, and when food could not be transported from other countres in time to save the dying. But no such explanation or apology prevals in the case of Ireland, 1840, or in the repeated famines from which India has lately suffered. The fifty millions of dollars granted by the French Parliament, in 1847, and the abundant charity of this country, did not prevent enormous loss of life in consequence of the failure of Ireland's potato crop; and all the vast expenditure and labor of the British Government has gone but a little way in staying thesofferings of India. The following table gives a faint idea of the extent of territory, and the number of people affected, by her last five famines:

Mr. James Gordon Bennett was in London last week. When there he dwells at "Long's," that highly aristocratic hostelry in Bond street, whose exclusiveness has been written about in many a novel of English high life. He drives about the parks and the West End in a stylesh private "Hansom," drawn by a powerful and symmetrical black horse. He is looking exceedingly well, and is inundated with invitations to high teas, garden parties, routs, &c., from the best English society whenever he crosses the Channel.

New York has a whole raft of savings banks yet, though several have gone where the woodbine twineth since the panic, and most of them provide nice comfortable places for parties who like to make an easy living. The whole amount of savings bank deposits in Gotham is over $2,000,000, and the total cost of taking care of them is $724,000. The salary list is an interesting study. It gives one an idea that the men who run the savings banks don't do it out of pure philanthropy altogether. There's me The sad fact with regard to India, and, in less degree, to Ireland also, is that the causes which made general famine possible in former centuries, still obtain in those countries—they are, so far as means of transportation go, still uncivilized. Sufferings of Turkish Wounded. London Examinar.

Terrible accounts are given of the harrowing condition in which the Turkish wounded arrived at Adrianople after the action south of the Balkans on the 29th and 30th of July. They did not arrive at Adrianople until the 20th and 30th of July. They did not arrive at Adrianople until the 20 and 3d of August, when the trains brought them to the number of 900, and not one of whom had his wounds—mostly occasioned by shells—attended to in the least, A number had died on the way; and the rest were in a condition that baffled description, as may be imagined from the fact that four days had elapsed since the injuries were received.

And even when they arrived at the station no prepyration had been made for their reception, and they had to lie in the open air for a couple of hours before conveyances could be lound to transport them to the hospital. It would have been almost merciful to have left them on the battlefield to be cut to death by the Bulgarians, for most of them were already in such a state that extensive amputations.

And even when they arrived at the station no preparation had been made for their reception, and they had to lie in the open air for a couple of hours before conveyances could be found to transport them to the hospital. It would have been almost merciful to have left them on the bastlefield to be cut to death by the Bulmarians, for most of them were already in such a state that extensive amputations were necessary, and amputations are scarcely ever performed by Turkish surgeons—firstly, because they leave the man a useless cripple and a burden to the State; and secondly, because a mutilated Moslem is not allowed to enter Paradise.

The Circassians, however, have in so far profiled by Etussian rule as to be able to distinguish between the duty and the neglect of the Turkish Government, One of their chiefs, while lying in the scorching sun waiting for the carts, addressed one of the sleek Turkish officials, who was sauntering about connting his beads, in terms that considerably astonished that functionary: "We shed our blood for you, you dogs, and you leave our wounded to die away like this! Is it morey you want to get carts? There it is, you hound?" And so saying he dashed a handful of gold into the official's face.

The King of Denmark recently made a journey from Copenhagen to London solely to graiffy Prince Albert Victor of Wales, who was ill and desired to see his granulfather. that it the bood will be sent to the various parts of the system with greater case, with less expenditure of power, and more perfectly than could possibly be done if one portion of the body were elevated above a horizontal line. On the other hand, if one portion of the body were elevated above a horizontal line. On the other hand, if one portion of the body is too low, the blood does not return as readily as it is carried thither; hence, there is an accumulation and distention, and pain soon follows. It a person goes to sleep with the head but a very little lower than the body he will either soon wake up, or will die with apoplexy before the morning, simply, because the blood could not get back from the brain as fast as it was carried to it. If a person lays himself down on a level floor for sleep, a portion of the head, at least, is lower than the heart, and discomfort as soon induced; hence, very properly, the world over, the head is elevated during sleep. The savage uses a log of wood or bunch of leaves; the civilized a pillow; and if this pillow is too thick, raising the head too high, there is not blood enough carried to the brain, and, as the brain is nourished, renewed and invigorated by the nutriment it receives from the blood during sleep, it is not fed sufficiently, and the result is unquiet sleep during the night, and a waking up in weariness, without refreshment, to be followed by a day of drowniness, discomfort and general inactivity of both mind and body. The healthful mean is a pillow which, by the pressure of the head, keeps it about four inches above the level of the bed or mattres; nor should the pillow be so soft as it to allow the head to be buried in it and excite perspiration, endangering earnche or cold in the head on turning over. If we add to this the number of eggs required for food we shall arrive at an enormous total consumption. The demand for albumen halled to many attempts to make it from blood. Two pounds of dry albumen represents 3½ oxen, 10 sheep, 17 calves, or 306 eggs. Efforts in this direction are proving more and more successful, and there are a number of factories in Europe where blood is thus economized.

CORE OF LIVER CONILAINT, &CO.

These Pills are alterative, and produce a healthy action of the liver without the least danger, as they are free from calomel, and yet more efficacious in restoring a healthy action of the liver.

These remedies are a certain cure for Consumption, as the Pulmonic Syrup ripens the matter and purifies the blood. The Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, create a healthy bile, and remove all diseases of the liver, often a cause of Consumption. The Sea Weed Tonic gives tone and strength to the stometh, makes a good digestion, and catables the organs to form good blood; and thus creates a healthy circulation of healthy blood. The combined action of these medicines, as thus explained, will cure every case of Consumption, if taken in time, and the use of the medicine persevered in.
